

WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

Mr. Campbell's Letter Deals With a Variety of things.

WEST VIRGINIA WOOL EXHIBIT

Very Gratifying—Wool From Other Countries—Our Wheat Makes a Good Showing—Educational Statistics From West Virginia—The State Building Not Yet Disposed of—Last Days of the Fair the Best Days.

Special Correspondence of the Intelligencer.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—It is said of man that "his last days should be his best days." So also it has been said of the fair all along, and so also it is turning out. Its last days are certainly its best days. Twenty millions of paid admissions are now easily in sight. There is only a million and a half to go to reach that figure.

The weather is perfect. No wraps are needed from 9 in the morning until sun down. At noonday the sun starts the perspiration on the brisk pedestrian, and the people enjoy seats at luncheon time on the lake front.

Nothing succeeds like success, and in proof of it New York is coming here fifty thousand strong on Manhattan day, which will be on Saturday. The Chicago papers are booming the day and praising New York and laughing in their sleeves, all in the same issue. New York is like a politician who gets down off the fence after the cat has jumped. They understand it all here.

The cry is now raised for another year of the fair, commencing in May next. The Chicago papers are exploiting public sentiment on the subject and may be manufacturing a little. 'Twould be a dangerous experiment. The country, cities and towns have had enough of the fair and complain that it has almost bankrupted them. The little city of Galesburg, Illinois, estimates that it has cost her $250,000. Query: How much has it cost Wheeling?

The reduction of admission to 10 cents for youth under 18, and a vacation in the schools this week, has given the fair a great boost in the way of 10 cent admissions. They run up to 60,000 per day.

WEST VIRGINIA BUILDING.

The West Virginia frame building remains unsold. No two people seem to have the same idea as to what it ought to be worth. It cost here $18,500 and was built by competitive contract. It seems to be a very dear building, indeed, at $18,500. There are those who say that it can be duplicated at Wheeling or Parkersburg for $10,000. It cost $18,500 without a foundation, and the ceilings were furnished by Caldwell and Peterson and by the Wheeling Corrugating Company at a merely nominal price. The cost of the lumber in, which is mostly hard wood, is quoted at $3,000. Col. Chancellor says that the contractor claims that he lost money on the job.

The Merino sheep committee, of which Col. Aleck Campbell, of Brooke county, and Julius Le Moine, of Washington county, are members, has finished its labors and made its report. Two of the Prussian rams that received medals were sold for $500 each, and Col. Aleck says he deprecates the fact that some West Virginia grower did not get them. They go to Montana.

I took a re-survey of all the wool on exhibition in the agricultural building the other day. West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Montana occupy one compartment on the second floor, and only fill about two-thirds of it. Ohio fills a similar compartment by herself, as does Wisconsin, also. New South Wales has more wool on exhibition than all of the states, and I am not sure but what the Argentine Republic also has. Among the West Virginia exhibitors are John R. Pogue, Thomas H. Strain, the C. H. Beall estate and James Hukell, of Brooke county; Abram Wilson, A. R. Jacob, Mrs. Rebecca McColloch, W. F. and J. P. Whitham, of Ohio county; P. A. Pugh, of Hancock, and S. A. Cockayne, of Marshall. Among our neighboring Pennsylvania exhibitors are James Glass and Lee R. Scott, of Burgettstown; S. A. McCalmont, of Hickory; James McClelland, of Cannonsburg; J. S. McNary (also of Washington county) had an exhibition of attractive delaine merino fleeces. The only Saxony fleeces that I saw here were those of A. R. Jacob. There was only one Belmont county exhibitor, viz., James B. Rieky, of Uniontown, who has some Atwood merino fleeces that weighed twelve and a half pounds each.

Referring to New South Wales again I may mention that she is possibly the best all-round exhibitor at the fair. She has certainly spread herself in a way that attracts marked attention. She especially lets the world see abundant specimens of her wealth in mining and agriculture. She posts up above her wool exhibit that she raises 331,886,720 pounds yearly, worth $55,180,090, or say 16c per lb. She is on hand also in manufactures, and in the liberal and fine arts departments, and shows up also in the forestry building. One of the Chicago papers draws a contrast between her general exhibit and that of the mother country, Great Britain. Great Britain has made only an indifferent impression at this fair. She allowed the New York papers to fool her into the idea that it was to be a failure. Germany, on the other hand, took the risks, as she did in our war, (when she bought our bonds) and has covered herself with credit in all departments. Like New South Wales, she is a first-class, all-round exhibitor. She is especially great in the manufactures department, and ranks very high in machinery hall.

OUR WHEAT EXHIBIT.

The wheat crop of West Virginia, according to census statistics, only averages a little over 10 bushels to the acre, but I see by her exhibits in the agricultural building that William Hogg, of Short Creek, claims to raise 33 bushels to the acre, weighing sixty and three-quarter pounds to the bushel, and from a bushel and a half of seed. It is labeled the gold straw variety. Milton Lazar, also of Brooke, exhibits a specimen of Fultz wheat which yielded 28 bushels to the acre. Zack Cox, of Ohio county, shows some Pox wheat that averaged 21 bushels. Maxwell brothers some averaging 25, and S. S. Jacob and W. V. Forman some Fultz wheat that ran 25 bushels. C. C. Forney, of Brooke, claims that he raised 30 bushels of the same wheat to the acre and that it weighed 61 pounds to the bushel. He used one and three-quarter bushels of seed. Forney also claims to have raised 40 bushels of buckwheat to the acre, from three pecks of seed, weighing 48 pounds to the bushel. On the other hand Jas. McNeal has an exhibit of buckwheat for which he only claims 15 bushels to the acre. In the way of corn, H. C. Morgan, of Ohio county, takes the cake in the way of an exhibit which he says yielded 80 bushels to the acre and weighed 70 pounds to the bushel. Zack Cox is a good second to Morgan, claiming that he raised 75 bushels on an acre from a peck of seed. (The average of the state is only about 20.) J. M. Wilson, of Brooke, claims 65 bushels from a peck of seed, with a weight of 70 pounds. J. D. Burkhardt, of Berkeley county, comes in with a sweep-stake claim that he raised 100 bushels of "Bint" corn from one-eighth of a peck of seed, and that it weighed 62 pounds to the bushel. S. S. Jacob, of Ohio county, contents himself with a claim of 60 bushels of corn to an acre on his farm, weighing 70 pounds to the bushel. Several of our Pan-Handle farmers put in claims of 40 bushels of oats to the acre; among them J. F. Counselman, M. Connelly, Scott Nizum and W. C. McCreath; while Thomas Hartley claims 45. W. G. Lewis, of Ohio county, has a specimen of rye on exhibition the statistics of which are not given. The statistics are also missing as to who raised that bunch of spring wheat in West Virginia. Some people say the superintendent raised it by his personal magnetism.

While West Virginia doesn't astonish and much less overpower anybody with her agricultural exhibit, it can be said of her as of New South Wales: that she leads the mother state by a full length. She is decidedly ahead of old Virginia.

In looking over our West Virginia mining exhibit I was struck with the fact that fifty-one of our fifty-four counties have coal in their soil. I was also struck with the statement in regard to the new Pocahontas field: that whereas only 105,000 tons were mined in 1883 there were 3,000,000 tons mined last year.

OUR EDUCATIONAL SHOWING.

Over at the West Virginia educational exhibit the other day I gathered the following statistics in regard to school matters in the state. First, that the per capita cost of free school education in West Virginia was $8.87. Second, that, curiously enough, it was highest in the city of Charleston, $9.20, and yet lowest $4.41, in Kanawha county. Third, that it was $15.13 in Wheeling and $17.77 in Ohio county; $15.92 in Brooke; $12.26 in Hancock, and $11.65 in Marshall. Fifth, that there are 4,982 white schools in the state, 168 colored and 13 Catholic. Sixth, that the permanent school fund is now $706,925, and that it is partly invested as follows, viz.:

Stock in First National Bank of Fairmont	$ 50,000 00
Parkersburg National Bank	40,000 00
National Bank of West Virginia at Wheeling	30,000 00
Wheeling City bonds	100,000 00
West Virginia bonds	135,581 73
United States Government bonds	32,000 00
Labourer's estate, W. Va. bonds	30,000 00
City of Charleston bonds	45,000 00

Seventh, that the average number of school days in the state is now 121 as against 59 in 1885, and that in Ohio county it is 200. Eighth, that the average daily attendance of scholars throughout the state is 128,044 as against 7,761 in 1885. Ninth, that West Virginia has received from the Peabody school fund from 1890 up to 1892 the sum of $156,065. I was talking the other day about newspapers with a Chicago advertiser. He told me that he had used the columns of over one hundred papers on his list, and that he had received more returns from his advertisements in the Wheeling INTELLIGENCER than from any other one paper. Industrial Education at the University.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

Sir:—A state university, if it meets the demands made upon it, if it justifies its cost, if it serves the purpose for which it is established, if it keeps up with the progress of the age in educational work, must provide for practical, technical, industrial education, as well as for instruction in languages, literature, mathematics and the several sciences. The usual classical, literary and scientific courses must not be abandoned or degraded. But, in addition to these, practical, technical courses must be given. These courses should include enough classical, literary and scientific instruction needed for the mastery of the technical course proper, but also a due degree of liberal culture. The ideally educated man for those days is one who is a thorough master of some craft or profession and has at the same time the mental development and training and the equipment and polish that come from a good course in languages, sciences, etc. The ideal system for a state university is that which provides for and secures both these ends.

Our own state university has established a department of mechanical arts, providing for and prepared for a good course in manual training and mechanical engineering. A building has been erected and furnished with machinery, tools, materials and the apparatus and equipment necessary. A four years' course has been arranged, leading to the degree of bachelor of arts in mechanical engineering. This course, both in the technical topics and the collateral studies, is substantially that given in the best technological schools and in universities that have such a department. The "plane" will soon be enlarged so as to afford greater facilities for the work in general, and a good physical laboratory and apparatus for a course in electrical engineering. The department is under the management of a competent director, trained especially for the work, who has had extensive and successful experiences in all matters pertaining to the operation of this branch of the university. Young men who come to the university will have opportunity to obtain a liberal education in the usual course of the term, and at the same time complete a most important technical course.

Prof. Search, who is at the head of this department, will at some convenient time give the public fuller information in regard to the topics, methods and working of this school. I think the people ought to know of it, and ought to be interested in it. It is one of the new features that are making the university so important a part of our system of education, and so worthy of the support of the people of the state.

ANOTHER TRIAL.

Americans Willing to Accommodate Lord Dunraven if He Isn't Satisfied. BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Eastern yachtsmen are not likely to endorse Lord Dunraven's opinion that the merits of the Valkyrie and Vigilant have not been fairly tried. They would like to have him race next season though, and more than that would have him race at Marblehead. General Payne is non-committal about putting the Jubilee in the race, but it is whispered that he thinks very favorably of having a hand in the sport. The Pilgrim may be reckoned as out of the game altogether.

Gen. Payne was asked by a reporter as to the possibility of races next spring, and in the conversation which followed, said: "One thing we have to contend with in America is the matter of crews," he said. "Very few of our racing crews are kept under pay the year around, and so the men scatter in the winter time and when you get a crew together in the summer you have to drill them very nearly as much as before. Still, if Lord Dunraven is anxious to race when the season is fairly open, I have no doubt he will be accommodated. The more racing you have in a season the better the season will be."

"Would you enter the Jubilee in races with the Valkyrie?" was asked. "I never made plans so far ahead of the season," was the reply. "All I can say about the Jubilee at present is that she suits me perfectly and that I shall not change her into a schooner." "And the result of the cup races?" "The result of the cup races is what I confidently expected it would be. In a voyage in American racing weather the Vigilant is undoubtedly the best boat of the two. She would be a winner in any series of races."

HELD UP A SALOON.

Masked Men Perpetrate a Bold Robbery in Wisconsin.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 20.—Three daring men held up every one in Joseph Ausfelder's saloon at 10 o'clock last night, shot two persons, and one of them probably fatally, cleaned out the money drawer and made their escape before their victims could make an outcry or summon the police. The boarders and habitués of the place were seated at the tables playing cards, when the men, each with a dark handkerchief tied over his face, entered the saloon. Each one of the men carried a big revolver, and the trio covered the whole crowd in a twinkling and commanded every one to yield up what they had. A little German fellow, known as Casper, was called on to turn over what he had. He laughed and pushed the robbers away saying: "You clear out and let me alone." As soon as he said this all three men fired as quick as a flash. One man was hit in the leg and Casper caught two bullets in the head, which will result fatally. The robbers stopped long enough to clean out the money drawer and then fled. The police are searching for the men with rather poor prospects of securing the bandits.

Terrible Explosion.

SPOKANE, WASH., Oct. 20.—An explosion of gas occurred last night in the dye works of C. L. Trotter, setting fire to the building and adjoining book store. There were a number of people in the book store, and the fire spread so rapidly that Mrs. William Beau was caught in the building and burned to death. Four others were injured, and it is feared some lives were lost in the dye works, but the explosion wrecked the building so that it is impossible to determine until the debris is cleared. The property loss is about $10,000.

That Graves Story.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 20.—The story about there having been a log instead of a body in Dr. Graves' coffin has been rife here for several days, but no attention has been paid to it. The coffin was not opened at the grave on Tuesday, and as far as can be learned was not opened when originally placed in the receiving vault of the cemetery. $6 far as could be gathered from what occurred at the grave on Tuesday the coffin contained the body of the unfortunate man.

Work of the Vesuvius.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The United States Yacht cruiser Vesuvius returned to this port yesterday after a cruise along the Atlantic coast in search of derelics. The Vesuvius destroyed with gun cotton torpedoes a number of wrecked vessels found floating off the New Jersey and Delaware coasts. She will remain in port, it is understood, until ordered to attend on the trials of the tripple screw steamer Columbia.

The Pope's Condolences.

ROME, Oct. 20.—Pope Leo has ordered his nuncio at Paris to tender the condolence of the vatican to the widow of Marshal MacMahon. Cardinal Rampolla sent a second message containing the condolence of the vatican, addressed to the French government.

CATARRH OF BRONCHIAL TUBES.

The Catarrhal Inflammation Often Extends from the Head and Throat Into the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs.

The Result is that Consumption Inevitably Follows if the Disease is Allowed to Run Unchecked by Appropriate Treatment. If You Have any of the Following Symptoms You Had Better Consult Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis at Once.

We have seen how catarrh of the nose extends to the eyes, ears and throat. By the same way it also extends at times to the bronchial tubes, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc. The symptoms of catarrh of the bronchial tubes are explained by the following questions often asked by Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis in the consultation room. If you cannot visit the office for a personal examination, reply by letter to each inquiry, when a diagnosis can be made of your case and medicine prepared and sent accordingly:

"Are you losing flesh gradually?"
"Do you notice you are often weak and languid?"
"Is your appetite variable?"
"Have you a disgust for fatty foods?"
"Are you low spirited at times?"
"Have you a cough?"
"Is your cough worse at night or morning?"
"Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?"
"Do you spit up yellow matter?"
"Do you raise frothy material?"
"Is your cough short and hacking?"
"Do you cough at times until you gag?"
"Have you a pain behind breast-bone?"

"Have you pain in the side?"
"Do you take cold easily?"
"Is there a burning pain in the throat?"
"Is there a tickling behind the palate?"
"Do you have to sit up at night to get your breath?"

CATARRH OF STOMACH.

Symptoms of this Distressing Affection Which Seem to be so Little Understood by the Average Physician.

When the catarrhal inflammation extends to the stomach and bowels the symptoms are variable. Not only do they vary in different individuals, but in the same individual at different times. The following questions describe the most common symptoms:

"Is there a constant bad taste in the mouth in the morning?"
"Is your throat filled with sticky mucus?"
"Do you hawk and spit?"
"Is the mucus easily dislodged, or is it tough, stringy and leucous?"
"Do you have to hawk at times until you gag and vomit?"
"Is your appetite for breakfast poor?"
"Is there nausea, especially at meal time?"
"Do you lose sleep after eating?"
"Is your tongue coated?"
"Is your breath foul?"
"When you get up suddenly are you dizzy?"
"Do you have much of indigestion?"
"Are you at times weak and nervous?"
"Do you at times have a trembling feeling?"
"Do you at times smother up and feel that you would choke?"
"Do you at times spit up your food?"
"Is there often pain after eating?"
"Do you have sick headache?"
"Do you at times have diarrhoea, at other times constipation?"
"Do you have a gnawing sensation in the stomach?"
"When the stomach is empty do you feel faint?"
"Or when stomach is full a feeling of oppression?"
"Do you often have rumbling in stomach and bowels?"
"Do you often have fluttering or palpitation of the heart?"
"Do you often have shortness of breath and smothered sensation?"

Drs. Copeland, Bell and Davis have the quickest, most certain and wonderful treatment for any of the above symptoms ever known. Their treatment has passed the period of experiment and is based upon correct physiological and therapeutic principles and they point with pride to the many permanent cures they have made during their location in Wheeling, the like of which has never been known in the history of any medical practice.

Outrage by White Caps.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 20.—News has been received here of an outrage perpetrated by white caps in Campbell county. Mrs. Ira Brooks and her two daughters have received several warnings lately that they were not wanted in the neighborhood, but paid no attention to them. Monday night a band of men surrounded their house, and setting it on fire, burned it to the ground with all the contents. The women barely escaped with their lives. Although the women were objectionable characters, the best people are greatly incensed, and the white caps will be prosecuted.
